

Dear FCC Commissioners & Staff:

I have just been made aware of a new NPRM which could cause me to lose my ability to use my local ISP for DSL.

This is intolerable.

I have invested a significant amount of time and effort into my personal web site, which is hosted by my ISP. I need to have the ability to obtain whatever bandwidth makes sense for me, via my ISP, without having to utilize some large carrier's email and internet services.

Also, pushing the small ISPs out of the market is anti-competitive, a stance that should be anathema to a GOP administration.

Thank you for considering my input into this proposal.

Sincerely,

Thomas Payne
